-- Taking our Power and Coming Home

Hello Every One,

Happy Valentine's Day!

As the energy shifts and moves upon Mother Earth we can assist by loving her, thanking and appreciating all that she does for us. Today, there is a sound healing event taking place at Noon today (see attached forwarded email at end) to take action to do just that ,assist our Mother as she moves through her own transformation.

We are inseparable from her and are affected likewise by her rejuvenation and return to her former glory. I wonder how many of you are experiencing sinus troubles lately! My guides tell of great shifts in energy currently and the opening of portals to remove stagnant energy from Mother Earth for recycling to other parts of the Universe. The following channeling tells of the benefit and how we see it manifesting around us. I hope you enjoy the following piece.

My love to you all,

Vivienne

The Soul and The Divine Connection

Dear Guidance, my friends,

Tomorrow is Valentine's Day. And my newsletter is due out Is there anything particular that I need write or is the piece about Mother Earth the piece to place out there?

We understand. What we will say is this. There are too many incidences of Divine Intervention in your world for others not to notice; too much evidence to be ignored. This should comfort and reassure many that indeed the hand of God/All That Is is playing a significant part at assisting the Planet Earth at this time.

Let us be clear about what this hand of God/All That Is is.

It has been assumed for many millennia that God is a separate entity from his children. That the two are not united, i.e., not part of the same being. This has caused many to abdicate their responsibility to alter or shift their reality of themselves and what is witnessed or experienced around them. Consequently, much has been left to continue in its irrelevant, diminishing form until no life force exists within it. This includes the life forms of Human Beings.

Currently, the energy shifts are profound. As man claims his Divine rights, his responsibility to access and use his inherent power wisely is upon him. Much is seen on your TV and newspapers that reflect the turning tide toward responsible action. This includes government, financial institutions, and human interaction (human relationships). The word 'trust' is a very current word being used by the media. Look for it. You will see it; "I trusted", "they trusted". The trust is being placed as a word to tell of the disharmony that is being played out between those who have power and those who have given their power away. By this we mean that governments have played on the trust of the people to make them believe that all is well and that they have the people's highest version of themselves as the beacon for actions taken.

Conversely, as the truth is spoken all who witness their betrayal of their highest version of themselves are diminished to say, "We trusted them to take care of us". There is a resulting anger, a resulting dissatisfaction with the way things have been. Rarely does a person say, "Oh! Look what I have done. I have given my power away." But the good news here is that the anger helps to learn the lesson. The upheavals at hand, witnessed in your media, are the results of the few who are returning to the knowledge that they hold within themselves the ability to make changes, to correct the imbalance and 'make waves': waves to re-ad-just and harmonize the energy of the Earth and the energy of the Divine/All That is. You are all the right hand of God. You are all making changes even if the change is only by many witnessed as anger and disagreement.

As the right hand of God/All That Is and your own divine intervention, your world will shift and change. At first, it will appear as if thugs came along and upturned all the stalls in the market. Later, those thugs will be seen as the angels of Divine intervention: yourselves. Do you see how you are changing your world? Do you see how you are once again cloaking yourself in the mantle of your Divinity? You take the action, you change the outcome and you are in harmony and connection with God/All that Is. You are shifting your reality to the reality of your Home. You are all coming Home: claiming your power and exercising it. Praise be to God. All is within the realm of the Divine. Thank you for taking your power. See the changes as the profound and obvious results of your shifting energy and your awakened states. Welcome Home, Children.

Welcome Home.
