-- Who am I writing to?

Dear Friends,

Ever the skeptic when it comes to writing to Spirit and challenged to place my good name and reputation behind what I send out to you, I have taken a couple of months off from sending out an e-newsletter to investigate this phenomenon of channeling writing.

As my brain perceives this reality I see with my eyes I want proof and scientific understanding of this process called channeled writing. I also don't relish the idea of being considered a whacko and ostracized by society as a whole. I like my comforts and to be liked by others so at this time of moving deeper into what brings me joy, and believe me I'm actually thrilled to gather the information that I receive from Spirit (if indeed that is what it is), I have been asking tough questions of late about the nature of who I'm writing to. I didn't intend to send this piece out but it was suggested by someone I respect that I did so, for she said those who also grapple with their own transformational process would benefit from it being shared. This is why this piece is going out at this time. Partly to let you know I haven't stopped writing altogether and partly to see if this connects to anyone else out there.

So, I would like to hear back from you if you chose to contact me, as to whether this information is indeed helpful and I am also willing to ask of our Divine Nature your specific questions if you have any. Ones that you would like to know the higher perspective on. In other words, I am looking for your participation to assist and support me moving further into and taking responsibility for what I am doing by writing to and accessing Spirit.

Thank you, Everyone. I hope you enjoy this piece. I suspect for some you'll probably wonder why I'm delving deeper and "not just getting on with it". My answer is I wish to accept and take responsibility for what I do and at this point I'm not satisfied with just calling it information from my 'spirit guides', it doesn't feel right any more. I very much look forward to hearing from you.

Dear Guides,

I welcome you into this space and ask you to join me now. You wrote that it would benefit me to contact you so here I am reaching out to make myself known to you in this moment and join our energies. Are we ready to start?

We are here child and ready to start.

I wonder if you can answer this question. When I write am I writing from my higher self and just pretending that there are higher beings out there doing this for me?

When you write to us you are accessing interdimensional information from all aspects of yourself that you are connected to and therefore, as you are connected in many more ways than you can physically comprehend it appears as if beings outside of yourself are responding. The truth of the matter is that you are actually communicating with the broadest band of information that you can singularly imagine.

So does that mean I am making it up, because when you say imagine that conjures up make-belief?

It means that when you are human in this current period of time it appears to you that there are many who wish to communicate with you. In fact, you are merely calling on those separated out parts of yourself that appear to exist concurrently within your own timeframe. Using your imagination does appear to you to infer fantasy but you must realize that when you access us you need a context in which to 'settle into' otherwise you would not be able to write in linear fashion.

What's the part of me that writes in order to reach out to you? What do you call it?

We call it your subservient self, the unholy part because of its fractured and fractal self. If you look through a kaleidoscope what do you see?

Lots of broken up colored light that when turned falls into a new position and then with the aid of mirrors and light creates reflections and patterns.

As with this part of you that exists in human form you are a mere portion of the whole. You really are all that colored light reflected and refracted back at yourself but from this point in space and time when you view yourself it is with less than one quarter of that turning kaleidoscope.

That helps. However, when you say 'subservient' that doesn't sound great. How does this concur with you saying many times about how great and powerful we are?

You are great and powerful but don't forget you are coming from an aspect of yourself that is limited in its ability to perceive itself from a greater vantage point. You are great and powerful but you have to align with that, step into your power, to be able to access it.

But I thought you said that we are great creators and that we don't know what we do?

When you are aligned with the inside knowledge of who you are and what it is that you are creating you are far more powerful than when you create unconsciously.

Aren't there instances of us creating without us being consciously aware of it? For example, weren't we asked if we wanted to go ahead with the events of Sept. 11 01. How is that not powerful?

You are using an aspect of your greater self, that part of you that is part of the mass intelligence that created the planet, to give an example of your limited human form. Your choices around 9/11 came out of the collective energy of souls and others who said there was benefit in your current reality to shifting your greater consciousness from unknown to known. You hit yourselves over the head and gave yourselves a headache in order to awaken a greater portion of those whose human form still slept.

Ok then, instead of that instance, what about when you say I'm anchoring love and home energies independent of knowing I'm doing it. How is that subservient?

Again, you are supposing that it is your limited human form that is creating this. It is not true. It is the higher dimensional reality of your true nature that is anchoring. Your physical body is the vehicle for this exchange of energies. However, it is not as powerful as the whole and is limited in its capabilities and therefore as we would put it, a servant or in service to the greater whole which includes you but does not exclude all of creation. A 'sub' part of creation.

Okay. Why do you say it's unholy?

This is because you operate from only a portion of your true magnificence much of the time in physical reality and therefore are not whole. You separate yourselves and become cut off from your Creator.

So it's not unholy as in unclean and not sanctioned by God?

Not at all. However, isn't it interesting that the more you are not part of the whole and the greater the distance you place yourself from your connection to Source, the more you feel you are cast off by God, rejected and abandoned?

So please, a constant if there is one, what is the correct terminology to address you with?

You could begin by recognizing that there are no limits to what you call the energy that you wish to access. It is all powerful, all Divine, all encompassing and without limits. It is beyond your power as a human to totally comprehend but it is not beyond your innate nature to secure. Therefore we suggest you honor your human form for it is indeed a vehicle for the Divine and address it this way:

"Oh Energy of the Divine that desires me to know my true nature, express to me now such information that would benefit me and those that I am here to serve at this time."

Thank you Divine Nature. I will use this as starting point for a new beginning.

We are pleased and welcome you to join in this manner again soon. Thank you for pursuing your greater reality. We are well pleased.
