-- Re-election of President Bush

Hi All,

Often deeply reluctant to post any messages that are currently political, I find myself compelled to send this one on. I received this channeled message the day of the November 2004 elections. Consistently witnessing the onslaught of challenges to our personal liberties just over the last six months has kept a bell ringing within me echoing, "Remember that channeling you did about the election result? Send it out."

While I make no claim to know the rightness or wrongness of current events, it is evident how imperative it is to remember, and be reminded to remember, even in the face of often great overwhelm, not to give up on what we hold to be our highest ideals, and that the holding and sharing of those ideals in our heart's core is powerful indeed.

I thank you all, my friends, those I know and don't, for continuing to keep your faith and trust in knowing what your truth is. It's comforting to know that you are there.

My love to you,

Vivienne

Spirit Friends, Higher Self and Divine Nature,

Now that we have chosen George W. Bush to be President, what are we to learn from him as our leader? How can we bring in the new energy? Many of us are not political campaigning types. Are those of use who sit on the side lines and watch

'abdicating our responsibility'? How can those of use who do not have a taste for politics make sure that we are creating the highest potential of ourselves?

When you look at the political arena right now you will witness a branching off into side roads of activism from the President that appears to completely alter course from the directives of his earlier term. We ask you all to watch out for where he 'drops the ball' of his initial path from his focus of term one. It will appear that he is going into the sinews of the muscle that has made America strong in the past and infiltrated a sinewy branch of control coming directly out of government. It is a desire of his to correct what appears to be an imbalance caused by new enlightened thinking. As George W. Bush is representing your own rebellious desire to stabilize the multiplying expansion of new dimensional interfacing, it appears as if strong-holds of administrative tendrils are wrapping around your freedoms. The universe is blatantly asking you if you are ready to cut loose your old ways. Are you really ready to harness the dynamic energy of your new world and catapult yourselves into a reality that has each and every one of you accepting your gift of self-empowerment?

It is only when you are limited from your expansion that you witness your own desire and willingness to step forward into the light. The counter resistance you find in George W.'s directed control comes from needing a spring board from which to catapult yourselves into a new dimension.

The United States of America represents a very powerful ideal on the face of your Planet. One that tolerates diversity empowering individuals to achieve their greatest goals and allow for human expression, producing the greatest example of human development at this time. These ideals, although seemingly implemented hundreds of years ago are only now being successfully implemented as the norm for all. The ideas were created, the thoughts of freedom and equality recognized, as the best that mankind can be. What you are doing is still deciding how that can come about. You have given yourselves a great gift. You have given yourselves more resistance; a place that galvanizes your country to act on its greatest ideas.

Much of what is presented to you as your liberties are easily unquestioned, a given, but the appreciation for those ways of being only become more valuable if they are seen to be taken away. For how would you see the light if you can't have the darkness to compare.

No indeed, Child, these are not the happiest of times for many of you but they are the most profound, and the service of humans sacrificing their own pursuit of immediate happiness for the long term goal of advancement of thought is exalted by us. We know you sacrifice much to see the light. We are aware of your deep heart aches and your trials. We are constantly aware that in shaking your world upside down you have lost sight of the original purpose behind this whole exercise in the first place. It often looks the darkest before the dawn.

These words are not said as platitudes. They are said as encouragement; remember your purpose and hold fast to the truth that you, each and every one of you, make a difference. The connectedness of your thought forms produce a sticky web-like substance that tendril out into the ethers (creative potential) and hooks together/onto each other and surrounds the Planet forming a web of higher order. Your highest order is your current version of the map for your evolution. This single signature is supplied by your individual expression of purposeful thinking which increases its power and filters out any other lesser versions of the truth. (The truth here we will signify as being the closest version you currently can conceive which best represents the inner knowing of your Divine Nature/Self.) This vibrating web of truth will not allow anything other than itself to pass through, thereby limiting the distortion of the truth. This combined single note ensures your successful application of high thought into matter. 'Keeping the faith' is the equivalent human epitaph to describe what you must do to build the web of truth's power. Losing faith will only test your own resolve. Of course, you will return to your faith but on how much of a divergent path do you wish to go before you realize you were right all along and you never had anything to fear in following your inner truth?

So think your thoughts of highest truth. Keep on your path. You will encounter resistance, it's a given. Even your own body cells will resist at times, for you were initially programmed to live in a dimension quite different from the one you now inhabit. You are the warriors and the front runners. You are the scouts, checking out the lay of the land. You will come back with all kinds of messages of what you have witness. It all makes for the greatest of all miraculous stories of all time. You cannot fail if you place yourself in the highest version of yourself and keep the faith. The old ways will pass and fade but not without a dying fight. Coming into the light means showing up with all of it, all of it: the pretty and the not so pretty; the beautiful and the ugly; the starry eyed and the disillusioned. You have to see what you are carrying before you can put it down. Allow yourself to witness the not so pretty, understandable, or acceptable parts of yourself. Be willing to look at what you perceive to be ugly about you and love it anyway. For it is your creation: the good and the bad; the likes and the dislikes. Enter into it and embrace it all. For, it all will be reconciled and transmuted. Maybe not as you would like, none the less, it must come to pass. Be brave, dear souls. Your journey is far from over but you have already accomplished much. Be prepared to accomplish more.

In great good faith, and with your unfailing belief in the right purpose in all things, we are your partners and share your grief and disappointments. But once again, it is not what it seems. There are tremendous benefits that with hindsight will show the perfection of your creation (creative abilities).

Go into your truth and live it. It will manifest. There are more of you than you think. Believe, trust and have faith!
